MACON MIRRORED.

AND THE REFLECTED RAYS CAUGHT.

Former Court—Two Funerals—Appointed a Deputy Sheriff's Staff—Recorder's Court—Harris' Conformation—Swim Justice—Other News, Notes, and Personalities, Etc.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—In the superior court today the case of Harris vs. Harris went to the jury. Colonel Balford Davis opened for the defense, and made a masterly argument, and he was followed by Hon. Charles L. Bartlett, who delivered an eloquent argument in behalf of the plaintiff, and then the case went to the jury, who are still out.

The grand jury was in session as usual, and took up the Moore mob case in dead earnest, and quite a number of witnesses were examined.

The report is circulated tonight that several parties anticipating similar trials in store for them have left the city. It looks like now that the grand jury is bent on finding out and punishing the perpetrators.

Bar's Funeral.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—The funeral of M. J. Baer occurred today at 3:30 p.m. Mr. Baer belonged to the Hebrew ordered B'nai Brith and Malachi, and these with the A. O. U. W., Anchor council, of Central Georgia Lodge, attended the funeral in a body. The ceremonies were very impressive, and many friends witnessed the last services.

Mr. Baer was buried in the amount of nine thousand dollars in Royal Araratian, Knights of Honor, A. O. U. W. and other associations. Besides, he leaves his wife in comfortable circumstances, owing considerable real estate in Vinemile.

Shackelford's Shift.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Deputy Shackelford arrived in the city this morning with G. M. Mosley, the man supposed to be involved in the robbery of C. M. Morris' safe, at Mr. Vernon, on July 27th. Shackelford succeeded in getting two hundred and fifty of the five hundred dollars recovered. It seems Mr. Mosley had posted a notice, owing to an agreement with McBryde & Son, withdrawing the reward. He compromised the matter with Shackelford by paying half. Mosley is in jail, and will have a preliminary hearing at an early day.

Recorder's Court.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—In the recorder's court today Charlotte Allen and Minnie Mims, who stole the gas fixtures from S. M. Subers yesterday, were fined one dollar each.

Robert Sledge got drunk and raised Cain on Cherry street, last evening. Officers Holmes and Yester arrested him and he was fined five dollars or five days on the gang.

Jack Murphy and Nellie Hunter were fined five dollars each for plain drunks.

Other cases were dismissed.

Death of a Bright Child.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Little Grace, the twelve year old daughter of Mr. Ambrose Crutchfield, died today from the effects of scarlet fever. She was a very bright child.

Mrs. Frances Brooks reported to the police that her boy, Sammy, was running off to Atlanta by the up train at night. Officer Holmes found the boy seated on the steps of the car, and arrested him. He was put in the barracks.

Swift Justice.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Jordan Allen was arrested and carried before Judge Subers in charge of simple larceny, yesterday. The case was dismissed. He was arrested, tried and sentenced respectively to four months and three months confinements in Richmond county jail. Fines $400 and $300.

The Contracts Awarded.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—The Savannah and Tybee railroad have awarded the lumber contract for the drawbridge, to McDaniel & Son, who were awarded it after five years of age and was unmarried, living with his aunt, Mrs. Summers. He had been watchman at the Central railroad shops for a long time.

Mrs. Lockett's Funeral.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—The funeral of Mrs. J. W. Lockett, occurred today at eleven a.m. Rev. J. E. Winchester officiating. The pall bearers were Messrs. W. H. Berg, J. F. Hanson, B. C. Smith, E. Winship, R. H. Plant, M. J. Fletcher and Dr. J. S. Bixby. The services were very beautiful.

Scot Richardson.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Scot Richardson, who is in very bad odor in Maco, has been returned from the chain-gang, where he has served a sixty day's sentence for larceny, to the city prison, where he will be held for carrying concealed weapons. Scot is a bad nigger.

Habers Corpus.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Charles Dunwoody, who is in jail on a charge of larceny, petitioned Judge Harris, for a hearing of his case. A writ of habeas corpus was served and he will have a hearing to-morrow.

Patterson's Purchase.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Recorder Patterson has purchased the elegant place formerly owned by Judge Thaddeus G. Hood, a short distance from the city, and will remove his family to that place to live.

Appointed a Deputy.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Mr. Landor Clay has been appointed a deputy United States marshal by Marshal L. M. Lamar, and will leave for Savannah at once.

Personal Paragraphs.

MACON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Mr. Thomas Biddle's little son died of diphtheria yesterday, and was buried today at his home by Mr. D. B. Woodruff.

Tonight the morning the case of Mary A. Sloan vs. Central Railroad and Banking company will come up at 3 a.m.

Dr. J. L. Lillington, of Savannah, Grant Wilkins, of Atlanta, and N. B. Harrold, are at the Elbow house.

Death of a Student.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—The Columbus Leader, a healthy lad from Twiggs county, and a student of the college here, while running up the steps at the college about a week ago, hurt himself internally, which resulted in his death at about 8 o'clock tonight. No one seems to know exactly how the accident occurred.

Death of Professor Nuttel.

ROME, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—Professor A. Bassel, principal of the music department of the Rome Female college, died this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

COURT WEEK IN DECATUR.
A Large Number of True Bills Found by the Grand Jury.

BAINEBRIDGE, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—The superior court met Monday of last week, Judge Bower presiding. Solicitor W. A. Spence was present, as also were Hon. W. H. Hammon and A. T. McIntyre, Jr., of the Thomasville bar.

The civil docket was taken up, and a large amount of civil business was disposed of. Thursday the serious illness of Judge Bower's wife caused a recess until today. Owing to her death court stood adjourned to the third Monday in January next.

The grand jury at this term recommended that the county court be abolished and reorganized under the general county code law, as is provided in the code. This body found the following true bills:

Caleb Cunningham, no, assault to murder. Will, no, assault, false imprisonment.

Tom Denmon, colored, burglary.

Robert Williams, assault to murder.

Jim Burney, burglary.

Simon and Marcus Brock, larceny from the house.

Louis Ezell, Joe Alday and Joe Clift, white, bigamy.

KNOCKED BY A CLUB.
A COUPLE OF ARTISTS SET EACH OTHER BY THE EARS.

Messrs Prather and Mills, Rival Artists, resort to the Feasting Business, and Wind Up With Clubs—The Assistants Fired—General News Gathered From All Parts of Georgia

WASHINGTON, Ga., November 16.—[Special.]—For some time past a little rivalry has existed between Messrs. Prather and C. B. Mills of this city.

These gentlemen are photographers and in the pursuit of their business they have run afoul of each other's interests. This resulted in expressions of opinion mutually uncomplimentary. Mr. Mills finally posted Mr. Prather at Floyd's corner. The language used was neither delicate or chaste.

As soon as Mr. Prather became aware of what was going on, he went to the Arnold house, where Mills was found to be at dinner. With a firm hold upon the back of a chair, Mr. Prather stood in the office. When Mills made his appearance in the room, Prather inflicted upon him a stunning blow with a stout club. While Mills was trying to recover his equilibrium, Prather was walked away by his employer.

A number of entertainments are spoken of in different parts of the state to aid the Confederate monument at Jackson.

Terry, Hinds county, shipped fruit this year 36,378 bushels, of which 25,000 were fruit, vegetables, etc., which netted $15,182.50.

HIGHLAND MARY, who has been introduced to the whole world by Robert Burns, is to have a monument. A meeting held for that purpose in Glasgow has resolved that Mary's form shall live in marble. The monument will be placed upon Castle hill, Dumnon.

In Danvers, Mass., lives Mrs. Miriam Putnam, whose husband was a son of General Putnam, of Revolutionary fame. She observed her 102d birthday on Sunday. Mrs. Putnam is the mother of twelve children, six boys and six girls, five of whom are now living. Her memory goes back to the death of Washington.

The death of Rev. Dr. S. Landrum removes from life one whose highest aim was the performance of duty. He found himself pastor of a Baptist church in Memphis when the last yellow fever epidemic broke out. Though urged by admirers to seek safety, he sternly refused and remained by his suffering people until the shadows were lifted.

Go and Register Today.

It is the duty of every good citizen of Atlanta to register, and thus qualify himself for voting in the city election.

It is doubtful if any single political act ever gave more satisfaction to Atlanta than the compromise effected between the factions who were putting out separate tickets for city officers. The compromise was commanded on all sides and the fusion ticket hailed with general delight.

If a single man on the fusion ticket should be defeated by treachery or apathy, all that was gained by the compromise and more would be lost. The two factions which united in good faith on a clearly defined and accepted compact, would divide more bitterly than ever, if that good faith should be destroyed or that compact broken. Unless the terms of the compact are carried out absolutely to the letter it will be impossible to ever bring the people together on any common platform again.

There is one possible danger to the ticket or to any part of it. That is the failure of the people to register. With a full registration every man on the ticket will be elected and have a thousand votes to spare. If the people do not register there is no predicting what may happen.

It is clearly the duty of every man to register. When is the best time to register? Today! There is no better time to do a duty than at the first moment it can possibly be done. Go out there and register today! Don't put it off; don't forget it!

Mormons Posing as Martyrs.

The polygamous Mormons still feel the horrors of the law.

Several prominent elders who have served one term for polygamy have been again convicted and sent to prison.

Bishop Bessett's case is rather peculiar. His first wife has taken an active hand in the prosecution. She does not like the idea of a seraglio full of wives, and she will make it lively for the old man before she gets through with him.

Some of the wives endeavored to shield their husbands by testifying that they did not know of their polygamous relations.

John Q. Cannon, one of the famous family, is held in heavy bail. He married two pretty sisters, Annie and Louise Well. Louise kept out of the way of the deputy marshals for some time. She was rambling over Utah with a Mikado company. Finally her picture appeared as one of the little maidens from school. With this picture the officers succeeded in running her down. On the examination of Cannon, Annie, his first wife, testified:

"I don't think my husband ever intended to me that he intended to marry my sister. I spoke to him about it several times, but he always denied that he was in love with Louise. I was not disturbed at all by this, and I never thought of the marriage. I believed that it was right, and I told my sister more than anyone else, and thought that he needed another wife. I preferred her to any one else."

"He knew that it was your desire that he should marry you, and yet he never invited you to witness the ceremony."

"I did not witness the ceremony. I understood the ceremony was to be performed that day, but I cannot tell who told me. I was in the yard, and did not go to witness it. When my sister came to the house that night I received her."

It will be recollect that Cannon, a short time ago, stood up in the tabernacle and confessed that he had been guilty of adultery. On the strength of this confession Annie secured a Utah divorce, and Cannon sought to use this as a bar to his prosecution for polygamy, but the court would not entertain it.

Twenty years ago David W. Lander, of the eleventh ward, married Ann Fellows, but as she bore him no children, he took Elizabeth Denney as a wife. The children which Elizabeth bore were raised by Ann, and now call Ann their mother. The two wives live in houses which are connected by a covered porch, and since the passage of the Edmunds law, David says he has lived with Elizabeth exclusively. The jury took a different view of the matter, and he goes up for six months.

The ease of O. P. Arnold has attracted much attention. He was arrested some time ago for unlawful cohabitation, but on promising to obey the law he was set at liberty. It appears from the evidence just produced on his second trial that he has been in the habit of visiting the families of both of his polygamous wives, who live some distance apart, and according to the judge's rulings he has not kept his promise that he would do nothing in the sight of the world to lead people to believe that he was cohabiting with more than one wife. In his defense it was urged that he had visited his children when they were desperately ill, and only at such other times as the promptings of a father's heart might reasonably lead him to do. After reciting the facts in the case, and dwelling upon the verdict of guilty which had been rendered, the judge said:

"Something over eighteen months ago you pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawfully cohabiting with more than one woman, whom the jury has convicted you on this trial. It now becomes the duty of the court to pass sentence on the verdict. Have you anything to say why judgment should not be passed?"

"Nothing, only I supposed I was obeying the law as it is interpreted by the court."

"You understand now that you must not visit your children under circumstances that indicate to the world and those that observe your conduct, that their mother is your wife, and your associate with her much more than with your wife."

To this there was no reply. Arnold's head falling on his breast. The judge waited a minute, and then said:

"Now, the question is whether you intend to obey the law, not as you understand it, but as it is interpreted by the court. What I promise to do I will do to the best of my ability. You do not intend, then, to make any promise?"

"I may have made some errors in my judgment, but I have not intended to make any."

The court then adjourned, after issuing to the evidence, they are such strict as you should not have made, and it becomes my duty to punish you. The object of this punishment is, of course, not to inflict any punishment or suffering on your family. The main purpose is to protect society and keep it pure. You are sentenced to confinement in the penitentiary for fifteen months."

Protection in England.

It is now a settled fact that the tariff will play a prominent part in the parliamentary elections. The British workmen are organized into trades unions and Knights of Labor. These bodies have adopted resolutions favoring heavy customs duties on foreign imports.

The present attitude of parties is such as to give the workmen the balance of power. The Tories are already preparing to utilize the tariff issue, and Randolph Churchill is quoted as saying that protection will float the Tory party into power.

On the other hand, Mr. Gladstone is getting ready to combat the arguments of the protectionists, but the grand old man does not propose to commit himself prematurely. It is even said that if he finds a spontaneous demand for a protective tariff on the part of the workmen, he will go further in granting protection to home industries than Churchill is prepared to go.

This revolution of sentiment in England is not surprising when it is considered that she has been distanced by protection countries, such as the United States and Germany. No country is going to stick to the free trade policy when she steadily loses by it, and England is in this situation.

A few nights ago Patrick Newman was drawn in a Brooklyn casket. Newman was a married man but he had been a brutal husband and a cruel father, and when he fell into the casket and appealed pitifully for help his wife stood quietly by and let the miserableness follow down. They were married nineteen years ago, and Mrs. Newman became in time the mother of fourteen children. Seven years ago her husband took to drink. He became such a tormentor to his family that neither his wife nor his children could see any peace and even his children learned to hate him. One night about a week ago, Newman went home drunk and chased his wife and a little daughter out of the house into the rain. He dropped into a drunken doze and the wife, raising a window, lifted the little daughter back into the house. A door was then opened by the wife and mother and daughter prepared to sleep. Newman awoke and ran after his wife, chasing her into the yard again. As he ran out he fell into a cistern, and although he shouted: "Mary, help me out!" she let him stay until he was drowned. The wife is in jail charged with causing the death of her husband.

The National Poultry and Bench Show. We have received a neatly printed pamphlet containing the premium list and rules and regulations of the National Poultry and Bench association. The rules and regulations are to govern the exhibition to be held in Atlanta next January, from the 15th to the 22d inclusive. The premiums to be competed for at the show are very liberal, and the prospects are that the first exhibition of the association will be very successful.

The show is to be thoroughly national in character. Breeders in all parts of the country have announced to the officers of the association that they will not only send large exhibits, but will attend in person. The display will not only surpass any similar one ever made in the south, but bids fair to be one of the largest—certainly the most thoroughly representative one—ever held in the United States.

The exhibition cannot fail to give a new impetus to the poultry business in Georgia and in the south. The finest fowls raised in the United States will be exhibited. We need not say that visitors will be royally entertained in Atlanta. Every possible arrangement will be made for their comfort. The railroads will bring them here and carry them away at reduced rates, and our citizens will take pleasure in contributing to the success of the show.

We shall have more to say of the matter hereafter.

The Free-Trade Scheme.

The free trade journals and the organs of the whisky ring in the west are just now engaged in making a terrible to do over the surplus revenue that is flowing into the United States treasury. They say this surplus represents unnecessary taxes wrong from the people, and they propose to remedy this evil, not by abolishing a form of taxation that is essentially a war measure and peculiarly un-American, to-wit, the internal revenue system, but by revising the tariff. This revision of the tariff they call revenue reform, and thus do away with the surplus, by reducing import duties.

This is the proposition, but it is a little singular that the partisans who are so loudly in favor of continuing the internal revenue system, which is the embodiment of a good deal of meanness and spitefulness in one way and another, have never paused to reflect that a simple reduction of customs duties, instead of decreasing the surplus would have the direct effect of largely increasing it. To reduce the import tax on the products of foreign labor to a point where our home products could compete with our home products would be to largely increase importation, and the increased importation would swell the surplus.

This is the meaning of Mr. Morrison's slogan, "A tariff for revenue only," or else the slogan is meaningless. If "a tariff for revenue only" means a tariff to revenue, it also means that, with the internal revenue still in operation, the surplus in the treasury would grow to larger proportions. In other words, a high tariff is not a revenue tax.

No; the programme of the reformers controlled by the whisky ring is free trade pure and simple. They propose to keep in operation the unjust and un-American excise system, with all its instruments of oppression, and take the duty wholly off of articles that are now protected against foreign competition. Unless they do this the result of their scheme will be the increase of the already large surplus that is flowing into the treasury.

Every genuine democrat in this country is, or ought to be, opposed to the internal revenue system, but for the benefit whisky ring it is to be kept up.

The constitution is for sale on all trains leading out of Atlanta, and at news stands in the principal business centers.

CONSTITUTIONALS.

Pencil Paragraphs and Editorial Shortstop Caught on the Run.

Macon has many contented and accomplished people within its limits. Although there is very little display and blowing of horns, there are people here whose literary attainments rank with those most accomplished in the land. Those people have resolved themselves into a literary club known as the Athenaeum, which society meets at stated intervals at the residences of its members. The constitution divides the membership into two classes. Active members are expected to contribute to the enterentments by reading, recitations or musical performances, such parts as are re-assigned them taking the work in rotation. The other members provide places of meeting and pay the nominal fee of one dollar per month each. The membership is limited to one hundred and fifty all told.

A. J. Battle, president of Mercer university, is president of the Athenaeum, and he steerers it with the most skill and tact.

The story is worth telling. Mrs. Seabright is the daughter of Lady Scott. She is noted for her beauty, and the fact that she has a private fortune of a cool million invests her with an additional interest. About a year ago she became acquainted with Arthur Seabright, a young man who belongs to the most fashionable clubs and moved in the best circles of London society. Seabright made love to the young lady, but was rejected. They continued on terms of friendly intimacy, and Seabright induced her to write her name on various "bits of paper." Eventually the girl learned that she had signed notes and bills amounting to a very large sum. Legal process was served on her and she was almost frenzied with mortification and terror. While she was in this state of mind Seabright told her that she could save herself from ruin by marrying him. Again he refused. Then the rascally lover asked her to meet him at a certain place. She kept the appointment, and found that she was at the registry office. A friend of Seabright had locked the door, and Seabright threatened to shoot her if she dared to show in any way that she was not acting of her own free will in the marriage which he was about to have performed between them. He forced a ring on her finger, but she threw it on the floor. The registrar read the form of marriage and she signed the registry without saying a word. When the bride left the office she sought refuge with Lady Scott, and refused to live with her husband or to see him alone for ever moment.

It was through the courtesy of Dr. Battle that I had the pleasure of a night's enjoyment at the last meeting of the Athenaeum, held in the spacious parlors of Wesleyan Female college. The subject for the night's entertainment was original essays, readings and criticisms, covering the life and works of this great proponent of human life. The first paper was read by Professor Glen in the English. Glen is a man of thirty-four, during which time he has studied law, traveled extensively, and written many articles for various periodicals.

After the late war the colored Methodists, in this state, formed a local church, and arranged for their constitution as a church under the title of the "Colored Episcopal Church in America," and as such, with its corps of bishops, it has made exceptionally excellent progress. Its greatest poverty of resources has been in the lack of trained and efficient men to do its work, and to this end the general conference of the Southern Methodist church to take cognizance of the needs in this regard and undertake a scheme to be appointed by the bishops in consultation with the trustees of the church.

It was through the efforts of Dr. Battle that the colored Methodists were able to secure the services of Dr. W. G. Dunlap, of Georgia, as superintendent of the colored Methodist church in the state. Dr. Dunlap has been elected to this position, and he is to be appointed by the bishops in consultation with the trustees.

AT THE DEPOT.

RESTING PLACE IN THE CITY.

Officer Porter and His Yellow Stick—
Twenty-Four Neighbors—
Two of Whom Are Children—A Chap and a Preacher, Etc.

Police Officer Porter, who guards trains to the union passenger depot, yellow walking stick that has been seen at his home and travel, he continues, with the stick extended allows nobody to enter without the initials. Travelers with tickets, express officials, mail officials, and reporters, are the only persons who can risk to be withdrawn to a position at his side.

The reporter accosted Officer Porter yesterday, and asked permission.

"I take it, sir," was the reply. "Walk in, I look around." Then, "There's no interest, but I never saw any in this depot, but I never saw any as just now. Why, sir, since the middle Sunday there's more life in this place than there is in the world. You mustn't smile, sir, while I say this."

The reporter asked Officer Porter to give tracks in the depot, used by the railroads. The reporter stood in one of the tracks and looked around, as he suddenly heard a sharp cry: "Out goes a truckman, pushing a mountain of boxes and gets outside the baggage room, where he was soon followed by a traveler and was knocked over upon a empty oyster cans, awaiting shipment."

There was no time for excuses. The reporter in the crowd and the reporter could be had eyes in the back of his head.

A GREAT RINGING OF BELLS.

On the arrival of a train—two trains from Augusta both arrive at 12 o'clock, there was a great noise, threatening to drown the sound of the bells.

Should the trucks.

The train had yielded twenty men at once.

"I am a citizen of this city," said a man with a handful of money.

"My pardon, sir. 'I didn't see you, sir.'

"I am a member of your eye."

the epidemic, having been saved against all odds. Subsequently, he was the agent of Mercer university, which position he resigned to accept the pastorate of the Coliseum Place Baptist church of Atlanta. His services were of great service to the church, and his labors were

IN THE COURTS.

What Was Done in the several Courts Dur- ing Yesterday.

There was no session of either of the United States courts yesterday. Several cases were called, and none of them being ready for trial, court adjourned to meet tomorrow morning at the usual hour.

The trial of the negro of Fulton county, the trial of the case of Mollie Farmer, colored, charged with infanticide, was concluded and a verdict of guilty rendered. She was then sentenced to the penitentiary service of the state for life. This is the second time the case has been before the courts. At the first, the jury failing to get a verdict, a mistrial was declared.

At the conclusion of the trial of Mollie Farmer, the case of the state vs. Henry Dorsey, a mulatto boy, charged with larceny from the house, was taken up. The principal witness for the prosecution was Isaac Robinson, who testified in the Atlanta case that the negro had a gold bracelet, the property of his wife, was stolen from their residence. The bracelet cost fifty-five dollars, and was almost new. A short time after losing the property, the negro Dorsey carried the bracelet to a jeweler's store, on Whitehall street, and offered to sell it for three dollars. Mr. Stevenson, after examining the property, and finding it was worth a good deal more, concluded that it was stolen. He detained Dorsey and sent for a policeman, who took charge of the negro and put him in a cell at the police headquarters. Soon after the key had been turned on Dorsey Mr. Robinson arrived on the scene of the robbery and identified the property. The jury after hearing the evidence returned a verdict finding the prisoner guilty of larceny from the house of property of the value of $25. Judge Marshall J. Clarke in passing sentence gave the prisoner eight months on the public works of the country.

Todays in the supreme court the cases of Fred Fennell, charged with burglary, and John George, a Frenchman, charged with assault to murder, are set for trial.

In the city court yesterday the trial of the suit of Jane Prather against the Richmond and Danville for $10,000 damages for the loss of her husband, who was killed in an accident.

In the city court yesterday the trial of the suit of Wesley Prather, husband of the plaintiff in the suit, six other men were killed and a number wounded. When the Prather case was presented the plaintiff was made by counsel for the road to lay all the blame together. The attorneys on the other side would not agree to this, however, and the Prather case was taken up on its own merits.

If the case now on trial should go against the company it is thought a compromise of all the money will probably be made. On the other side, if the company is held responsible, it is believed that the other cases will be tried, trusting to luck in getting a different kind of jury. Two more suits for damages in which men were killed at the same time and place and under the same circumstances are set for trial at this term of the court. One of these is put down for next week and the other for the week following.

What We See.

"Philosophy of Vision," the eloquent lecture by Rev. J. V. Lee, that was to have been delivered last Thursday night will be given next Thursday 7:30 p.m. It has been exhibited by many of the best minds that have heard it, and it will be better understood by those who hear it. It will be given in the beautiful Park-Street church, West End. Let all go and hear it.

"Good Bye," Mr. "Anonymous Scribbler."

We have read your one hundred and thirty lines of stupid mutterings of the 18th inst., and in reply would say:

1. The "Northwestern" does not issue an "incomparable" policy; it reserves the right to protect its honest policy-holders.

2. We made the statement that the "proof of loss" in the Harwood loss left Atlanta June 13th, 1886, or five days after Mrs. Harwood gave her receipt for the money (according to the receipt published by the Equitable). You deny that the Equitable was so reckless in the payment of so large a sum and say you get the facts, we have asked two of Atlanta's leading citizens to examine our authority for our statement.

ATLANTA, Ga., November 15, 1886.—We certify that we have examined the letter press copy of the letter which accompanied the proof of loss, and find it to be in full accordance with the letter of D. B. Harwood sent the Equitable Life Insurance society, and that said letter press copy bears date "Atlanta, Ga., June 13th, 1886." Signed,

"W. A. THOMSON," "A. M. C. WILSON."

(On the same day similar letters and proofs of loss with duplicate copies of our letter were sent to the other life insurance companies interested.)

This Thomson will be recognized at once as one of Atlanta's most prominent attorneys. Mr. Wilson is the senior member of the firm of A. M. C. W. and W. A. Thompson.

You do not require me to tell you why did the Equitable require Mrs. Harwood to secure them against the loss notice from Harwood's creditors and that the loss notice was given to the Equitable paid over seven thousand dollars. You are silent as to why the $100,000 check was not a $100,000 good bye.

Good bye, Mr. H. H. Knowles, agent. The next time your company takes a reckless advertising dodge and calls it life insurance, please close up the gap. Yours truly,

W. Woods White,
